THE
Kaleidoscope
OF
1924
FOREWORD

Into this—the quintessence of our college memoirs—we have poured as into a mould, all the warmth of personal friendships, all the sacrifices of men and women to a higher sense of duty, and all the sense of sincerity to those of a broader knowledge of the world, who have guided our thoughts, and directed our characters—we desire to lay in the laps of the gods this gift of our total creative ability. Its purpose is to cast a new and fresh light on our collegiate days. It is to illumine that which we cherish so dearly. It is to give evidence that we pay homage to the cloisters of our College—to its sincere spirit and its vast significance. Thus in an humble way to show our appreciation of those who have given us light, and who have helped us to rub away the disillusionments of youth and to weigh everything of our natures in the scales of time, to see if we are found wanting. Here we have separated the chaff and the wheat, the laughter and the thoughtlessness, the tributes to mind and the tributes to body, the sense of beauty and feel of personality, the stepping stones to character and the spirits to endeavor. This book is peculiarly our own. Yet we claim no superior Class egotism. It is to the college spirit that this volume is in a sense dedicated—to the one who in our eyes seems to be the living ember, who in his humble ways cherished that spirit of our College by trying to make it permeate the men and women who have come within its cloisters and his contact.
To

Myron Reed Sanford

In recognition of reverent services as one who has applied Dante's master phrase, "Give light and people will find their own road." to a generation which is on the threshold of taking their places in the world-of-affairs---the Class of 1924 with great sincerity dedicates this testimony of its lasting appreciation.

'24 Will Not Forget
Senior Class History

"Now as grave and reverent Seniors
Smile we o'er the verdant past."

Seniors have a natural tendency to dwell on the past in considering collegiate affairs, and, so dwelling, perhaps to enlarge a bit upon the glories of a day gone by. Such is human nature that anon, when we are far from college halls, the wildness of our college days may be expected to continue to increase in direct ratio with the distance and shall mayhap appear as bold and daring as do the "good old days" of which our fathers boast.

Joyous days we've spent, joyous and occasionally flaring and lurid as that memorable day when we battled '22 for a 0-0 score with our quarterback a prisoner at some remote spot and class feeling at fever heat. We had our share of class struggles, and won them for the most part. Our social events have glided to success generously lubricated with the sweat of our brows. We have been well represented in all the activities of the campus. We have on the whole a creditable record. Our numbers are grievously shrunk, but with reduced ranks we go on through our last year reminiscent of the fun and laughter of our underclass days, keenly appreciative of the joys which now surround us, and hoping that when we go out from Middlebury, it shall be to add new glory to her honored name.

FLORENCE LETETIA YATES  Middlebury, Vermont
Middlebury High School.
Three years have fled since our Class was encompassed within the cloisters of our college. In our genuineness lay our verdant hope. Our distasteful enemies could but admire our distinctive virtues, and Junior Week we proudly lifted our “Pea Greens” as a token of our superiority in athletics.

The second year found a greater opposition to our athletic prowess, and a horde of Freshmen who, by sheer numbers, eclipsed our record. We had all to gain and nothing to lose. Though going down to some defeats in Class Sports, there never was a touch of the ignoble in the defeat. On the contrary, the spark of courage beamed forth brilliantly. Quality not quantity is one of the superb attributes of our class. Our losses have been negligible; our gain important.

Anon, many of the grains of sand in the hour glass have fled—we have depreciated in numbers—but have grown strong and healthy in collegiate experience and class contact. Let it be known that from our class a full share of honor has befallen its loyal members. In all forms of college activities of body and mind we have sent our just share and quota.
Bryan with his silver tongue, and “Egg” must be contemporaries. We can’t call it loquaciousness: perhaps eloquence is better. But he certainly does get away big when he is preaching.

He has a fairly well worked up side-line too—women. The art of fascination must have some direct connection with the pulpit, because when “Egg” is not practicing his next Sunday’s sermon, he is tossing a coin to see which one will be the victim again. He is pretty faithful to five or six.

He can be serious and—when he is—beware! and go over your own conscience to see if you are the guilty one. He is not particular about being lenient with his friends, but his wrath falls on the deserving.

“Men of thought be up and stirring.”
We are glad to welcome “Axie” back on our side of the hill this year. In his Freshman year someone unfortunately applied the nickname, “Fusser,” to him, and he evidently felt that he must live up to it. In his own words, “the roving life of a free lance is the only one,” and for three months now, he has exerted a forbearance of the contrary sex that would make a hermit look like a parlor snake.

“Axie” is a little lacking in class spirit. Early in his college career he conceived an attachment for the class of 1925, and we have not been able to entirely wean him yet. However, he has bought a book this year, and we are encouraged. Just at present he’s certainly in a class by himself.

“A fair little girl sat under a tree.”
Anon! this fortuitous concourse of atoms arrived in our midst. He hails from a Mount somewhere near the Rialto of America and overlords that mount as Zeus of yore. He was hardly amongst us ere the libertine in his blood called out and said, “me for the nursery again.” And would you believe it, he hied himself down to Freddie Welsh’s Health Farm—the Fountain of Youth which Ponce de Leon missed by the wayside—to get rejuvenated; not Doctor Voronoff’s style, but once more to imbibe that ancient but honorable elixir of life, Mellin’s Food. After a sojourn lengthy enough to build up his broken down constitution, he dashed up to the intelligencia again to grind out his “Periscope.” By the way he’s a budding Columnist of a delicious style. He slings a mean Waterman as well as a good size hard-boiled mitt. As far as self-preservation goes he is secure.

And one of the Vulcans lifted up his single lamp and said vociferously,

“Be hard! live dangerously.”

Who’s that little guy hiding behind that big Cello? Why, that’s “Sam;” he thinks he’s sawing wood and that is the wood pile. He is sort of wedded to his art, at least it sounds that way at times.

He may be small, but Oh my! It is rumored that he is going to start a bank in opposition to the Middlebury National Bank and he has certainly been saving up, long enough to do it. “Sam” says, “Darned if I will let any woman spend my money, when I can be getting three per cent on it.” He says he is going to be a lawyer and then he can run Rutland in the proper manner. He has already decided to move it nearer Midd, so he can go home between classes instead of just at week-ends. He says that Midd is O. K., but prefers to go to Russell Sage for an education.

“Bob” hails from South Hadley Falls and he claims that it is the most industrious town in the state. Football had such a strong attachment for “Bob” that he went out all three years on the squad, but had hard luck. He says he lost his drag with the coach.

When it comes to ski-jumping and doing the herringbone crawl Robert is right on the ground. Ask him about his trip to Lake Placid and his ski-jump record in the rear of Noble’s Hill. (Altitude, not distance).

In spite of all his difficulties, “Bob” still smiles and has a determined look on his face that denotes a hard-working man. “Bob” earnestly declares that he has decided to run the business for The Falls as soon as he graduates.

Recently “Bob” made up his mind to become a seaman and inquired into the possibility of obtaining a job on the U. S. S. President Hardin as a head waiter. He is still waiting for his answer. “Bob” says he is discouraged.

In Robert we have one of the most illustrious and hard-working members of the Junior Class and we shall certainly be sorry when he leaves.
Our boy “Bill” after due deliberation migrated from scenic Ithaca to the jungles of Vermont. Some say he came baboon hunting but we should judge otherwise. Living in next to the largest city in the world he is a little cosmos all by himself. It was a strange freak of nature that assembled those two wild dervishes “Beef” and him together. “Bill” is Murray’s, the Cornwall Cider King’s side-kick. This brands him as a hard drinker, a vehement opposer of Volstead and a jolly good fellow. A little erratic, it only serves to make him versatile and capable of anything from quoting the laws of Confucius to making furniture.

He has an elastic vocabulary which might easily have given him an excellent job as the King of Spain’s most honorable Toreador. He has an eye for money and an eye for history. Finances and the fall of Rome are one to him and he earnestly plods the road to complete understanding of the road to universal history. We believe that he is making up an encyclopedia of all Human history. The only true manner in which we might find “Bill” at his best is in the South Sea Islands beating out Robinson Crusoe as an adventurer. “Bill” is preparing to make that famous journey around the earth on foot in thirty days. He is an exponent of Jules Verne’s, Alexander Hamilton and Gibbon. The mixture is perfectly compatible—sometimes!

“Dick” is a man of the hour, a business manager of no mean ability, but how could a keen young man like himself be otherwise. He has all the downtown merchants hiding under the counters when he heaves in sight, because they know that he will surely separate them from some of their filthy lucre.

His first name should have been Rudolph as far as the fair sex is concerned, but he never lets pleasure interfere with business, and so has been compelled to ignore them most of the time. But when they see him doing stunts on the frozen H₂O it is hard for him to keep them away. He also holds a number of records for fancy diving on skis.

"Fine, Carlton, old boy, but say, we want you to sit this afternoon for one of our latest models." And there you have it. "Goody" has his picture in every magazine that goes to print.

But he has also been a worker in track. Basketball has had an attraction for "Goody" and in his Freshman year he was the proud winner of a jersey.

"Goody" divides his spare time between the Chem lab and his desk, where he pursues the elusive key. And we think he has a good chance.

Under a very unassuming and quiet exterior you will find a very nice chap and one who will make a good pal.

We wish you luck, Goodman, old dear.

"Harv" claims to be the champion ukelele player in college and we have not yet found anyone to challenge that title. And how he can sing! "Harv" and his uke are familiar sounds. His record also shows inherent athletic ability. He was on the baseball squad two years, but his activity there is eclipsed by his playing in the famous Starr-Painter football game, when he starred for Starr. He also claims honorable mention as a card shark. Beyond question, though, "Harv" is to be remembered more by his connection with the world-renowned South Starr Gang of last year which nearly wrecked the college, than by any other activity. He is one of the faithful few who are trying to perpetuate the institution of South Starr.

When Brother Larry from Bean Town induced his neighborly Soda Jerk to pass up the life of King Phizz, some say he did himself well. Indeed this lengthy bit of the old Bay State who is as full of angles and knots as the goodly cape which serves as divers means of summer education, is a fairly good traveling advertisement of escalators. He moves at about their pace, not a human step but according to his number 10's a little better than a gallop. He essayed the first thing to beat Morvich's record but of course when he came up against that famous exponent of the Kentucky Derby, he had his hands full. "Doc," who borrows his fame from that illustrious discoverer of the North Pole, percolates cider as a teapot does Orange Pekoe. Taking to heart the lesson of Old Benjamin Harrison, he captured the Junior Presidency on a Hard Cider Platform. He is trying to be an exponent of Emerson and Arthur Brisbane—a happy mixture of philosophy and literature. But nevertheless there lingers in his burning imagination a Utopia or a Garden of Allah that would make Maxfield Parrishes' "Dinky Bird" look like a Sunday supplement.

What ho! Here comes the King! How determinedly he ambles up the Chapel walk. And who may that be with him? Ah! But you should know. For this is that gentle youth from the neighboring metropolis of Rutland. He swears that the city hath its charms, but so also hath the small town.

It is rumored that when "Bottle" came to Midd, he learned of the hill up which it is necessary to walk every day to Chapel and he was determined not to stay. But on further consideration he decided that it might be a great benefit to pursue education here at Midd, and he has been hot on the trail for three years. Of late he has been such a devoted commuter that the ticket agency for the Rutland Railroad has had to increase their output of tickets. And that's not all, for we understand that he is about to be elected to the office of Mayor of a town. What town? you ask. As "Bottle" would tell you, don't you wish you knew?

There are two things, as this second Wally says, which he really thinks should be changed—namely the number of subjects which one must pursue, and those credits which one must so carefully collect.

We have not only heard of, but we have seen, this gentleman on the steel blades. He certainly flashes a mean pair. Ask him about his waltzing act. And the bumps on the ice.
In "Herbie" we have a concentrated product of the "Nutmeg State," or in other words, the reproduction of the quintessence of that individual known the country over as the "Connecticut Yankee." But be not alarmed; "Herb" is not of that inactive "wooden" nutmeg type and to us who know him he is indeed an active and brainy individual. Of course there are little things about him that some of us know; now be calm! as there will be no stage whispers emitted. We will say, however, that you would be surprised if given a glimpse of the true "Herb." You bet! Speedy?—at times. Socialite?—well, not around Middlebury, but watch him as he approaches those confines of his native territory. At Hepburn, "Herbie" is a prominent individual and much to the disgust of unassuming Freshmen, he heads the record of having stacked the greatest number of rooms. Nevertheless, he has his good points and I doubt if anyone could wish to have a firmer and truer friend.
And now let us speak a few words about Southern California. This sun-kist specimen from the home of the moving pictures got homesick for the bathing beauties of sunny California and went back after his Freshman year to enjoy them. About that time the Arbuckle scandal came to light, and “Craney” hopped the next express east. Far be it from us to imply anything, but he hasn’t been back since. Whatever the circumstances of this second plunge into Midd society we certainly welcome him, and decide that California produces something after all besides fruits.

Rumor has it that the local movie magnate offered “Craney” a substantial reward not to reveal any of the plots of the pictures he is showing, but “Craney” says it is unnecessary as he has forgotten them all by the time they get here.

For the satisfaction of the hero, let us add that California does have its good points, to wit, the boxes of nuts and raisins they send on every Christmas.

Washington Academy; Troy Conference Academy; Sophomore Hop Committee, (2); Assistant Manager Football, (3); Manager Football, Season 1923.

Don is a loyal son of Midd and one who finds no fault with the co-educational system. His activities are not confined to one line, but his field is wide, ranging from the part of a student to the fine art of managing a football season. Donald never worries about the latter, but rather confines his attentions to the study of mathematics, which he expects to pass—next year.

His war-cry used to be "Salem against the world," but now he is willing to admit that there is a small town in Massachusetts which, though not prominent on the map, is ever uppermost in his mind.

Some of us are sure this world would be a dreary place if it were not for the melodious tones which Donald somehow manages to pound out of the ivoryless-keyed piano, which at times has furnished much amusement for those who make their abode on Weybridge Street. He is every inch a man and regardless of his good points we all love him.

This smooth looking youth is the barometer of men's fashions in college. If you want to see "What the well-dressed young man will wear," just cast your optics on him and get wised-up.

Even with the handicap of his name, he's a go-getter, and contrary to its suggestion, does much. Track has claimed a good share of his attention and we look to him to "do(a) little" more than he did last year, and make the high jump record resemble food for a canned music box after being dropped.

"Copper" cuts quite a swath on the other side of the hill and his shoe trees are cut full of notches to testify to his "Affaires de Soir."

Latest news from the front—(Pearson's Hall)—states that Robert has entered an endurance contest.

Speaking of dignity, President Harding himself isn’t in it with “Durk.” But dignity is not all that “Hal” can boast. We really think that the “sax” is the most musical instrument in all the orchestra. He can make it talk, laugh and call for mama, and it makes everyone else dance. Music is certainly his strong forte; with the piano, drums, but most of all “The Sax,” “Durk” gives expression to the music that is born in him. And how romantic he is! He is as versatile with the women as with his saxophone. With his music, social duties and passion for bridge, the world rests heavily on his shoulders. If you do not believe it, notice the gilded dome.

“For his head resembles heaven,
For there is no parting there.”
We wonder if the poet meant "Jim," when he said, "Woodman, spare that tree." "Jim" is a fairly good description of Irving's schoolmaster of Sleepy Hollow and can never be called by some comely buxom maid, "Dear little Jimmie," for it would be a terrible misuse of Anglo-Saxon. But Abe Lincoln was tall, strong and as big hearted a man as ever drew breath in America. "Jim" isn't Abe but he has Abe's famous symmetry. By all means "Jim" has missed his avocation, he surely should have been a runner of note. Instead each year he is lost in the web and woof of the famous art of "petting." It makes one wonder for a while how he ever does manage to accomplish the requirements involved in passing seven courses per semester while in college. But he gets so much exercise and road work perambulating between Hepburn Hall and the Spanish House that he keeps his mind fairly well aired. "Jim" has just one "Lil" trouble, that is how to love all, but one especially. Cleopatra had the same trouble, only vice versa, and Paris the same ailment, as the three golden apples testify. He chose not wisely but too well.

“Fletch” didn’t have far to travel when he decided on Midd—but in so making up his mind he forgot that eight o’clock classes meant a strong adhering to Ben Franklin’s maxim, “Early to bed and early to rise, etc.” We are kind of partial to that name and kind of think that it is a good-given name if it is supposed to be symbolic of that famous city across the water. Again if he were named after that strange shepherd of ancient Hellas who chose not wisely but too well, oh, then he is doomed for something famous in later life. The three choices that this Paris would make are of course between Terpsichore, Phi Bete and Binks. Being closely allied with the financial backbone of the College he never worries about Penny Ante or Student Loans.

“I too am a bit tame. I too am untranslatable.”
Hush! 'Tis whispered about that this placid countenance hides 'neath itself the lofty ambition of a Valentino. Surely such a model for Greek Art is destined for a world outside our ken. Modest and not too presumptuous, our "Bob" "seemed nourished upon Star beams, and the stuff of rainbows, and the tempest and the foam." He is a rare delicacy and might have lived in another age when tall proud Marquis of France lived in their famous chateaus near Versailles and the Royal Court.

But again our "Bob" might have been a Monk, hied to some monastery. He is quite pensive and not at all alarming. He drags away by the hour with the nicest of mannerisms at his average pack of Lucky Strikes per day. When fortune with her silver platter happens to dump some neat gift of a Peter Schuyler Panatella within the grasp of his fingers, why then he is delighted and wastes another day blowing rings. He's so ethereally dainty and benign that it keeps a person always on the lookout to see if he is really going to do something. Smooth as a placid woodland fountain, probably there lies the turbulency of a devil underneath. Who knows? We live to learn!

The fair specimen of healthy manhood above featured came fresh from the Springfield Y. M. C. A. He brought some of its ideals with him.

"Jack" has the reputation of being a fast worker on the basketball court, even when it is being used for a dance. His letter filing system devoted to billet-doux is unique in its line and shows its originator to have natural business propensities, or to be a systematic lover. He disposes of his regular five daily epistles with, "Now she rates an answer right off; and this one I guess can wait a couple of weeks; this one, etc., ad nauseam."

At basketball "Jack" shines brightest and can be counted on consistently to come through with his wares.

"A lion among ladies."
"Stan" has kept away from the hill in a way which we cannot understand, as he has a smile "all wool and a yard wide" which can win over anybody. Debating is his strong point, so do not start an argument with him unless you want a few pointers on debating as taught by "Davy."

We do not know what his cherished ambition happens to be, as he never seems to have time to confide in anyone. He is kept on the go continually, rushing to and from classes with always something to do. Perhaps his brother who preceded him has given him some good advice on "How to get through college—the one and only way." Without a doubt it has helped as we never see Stanton expecting any flunks when they come out.

"P-O" hails from Ludlow, Vt. He attended Holy Cross College for a short period, but later entered Middlebury with the class of '24. "P-O" has changed quite a bit since he has joined the ranks of the Blue and White. He has advanced tremendously along the lines of music and public speaking. "P-O" couldn't tell the difference between C sharp and B flat when he first came here, but now he can play "Home, Sweet Home" on the Sax without hitting a sour note. The "musical appreciation" department must be credited also for "P-O's" marvelous ability at "vocalizing." His favorite pastime is to sing "O, Mister Moon" to the boys, or to call out the horse races from the roof of the Alpha Sig House. "P-O's" favorite sport is baseball. He likes to play all positions at once but he stars particularly in the pitcher's box. He has a right wing that would dazzle the "Bambino," if the latter should ever come up against it. "Oliver" only regrets that he will not be able to meet the "Bambino" just yet, at least, not this year.

He seems to fit strong with the fair co-eds, especially with the "Home Ec's." Many times "P-O" takes a trip over to the Homestead and comes back with his mouth and hands full of the grub made by these "Home Ec" girls. We ask him if there is a chance for us, but his only answer is, "No chance, no chance, Chawley."

“Walt,” our progressive “Jack-of-all-trades,” seems built for most any kind of wear and tear. He is a ball player, a handball court shark, an erudite scholar, a happy-go-lucky chap and a pugilist. About the first glimpse into his nature came during our initial bow into the College when we remember seeing him spill things with doughty Doug in a furious manner. We are inclined to think if the famous “Aris” hadn’t become his side-kick and filled him with bookish inclinations, he might have gained by this time some greater recognition of his prowess in athletics. Being duly dosed with the good “Aris’s” philosophic pills, it isn’t often we see the good “Walt” on the campus. He seems to be on the industrious path of accumulating Briney’s superfluous knowledge of physics.

Lysle is the proverbial minister's son. Unless he goes into the movies he will miss his calling. It is very true that he once starred in Prize Speaking years ago, back in 1921, but he is at present starring in the realm of society. Two or three dates a single night is not out of the ordinary and seven nights a week is the rule. Any man who can get into as many scrapes as Lysle and get out of them intact, deserves to go down in history as a rival of Peck's Bad Boy.

There is considerable discussion as to his home. He claims Wallingford, but rumor has it that he stepped out of an Arrow Collar ad in the back cover of a Cosmopolitan. At any rate he is a credit to any place. His smile and good nature will get him anywhere. As an actor Lysle will make good on any stage, providing it's big enough. He must have room for his feet.

“Sonny” reached Middlebury via Dartmouth College, for the call of the old Green Mountains was louder than the Wah-hoo-wah of the Indian. Ludlow you know is “Sonny’s” habitat and being the great financial center of the country for several miles around it is small wonder that this, its favorite son, should be known as an astute dabbler in stocks. “Sonny’s” favorite literature is the Cosmopolitan (picture section) and the Wall Street Magazine.

A survey of his scholastic ability reveals the power of an analytical mind of no mean ability, and we wonder as we watch him thoughtfully pursing his lips, if it is an anticipatory analysis of the intrinsic value of a Phi Bete Key.

The energy and directness of a natural born financier is e’en in this guileless remark recently made by an observant Autochton, “Thet Howard feller allus seems to be a-boltin’ in one direction.”

The Navy has its John Philip Sousa.

Middlebury has its James Allen Hunter.

The fact that “Al” was president of our Freshman class did not divert his artistic pursuits and the crowning event of his career here was accomplished this year when Hunter’s Harmony Hounds formally entered the field of Middlebury College musical endeavor. Right here we’ll say he jazzes a mean fiddle. “Al” entered this institution from the wilds of St. Johnsbury, and gives constant evidence of his barbaric training, although he has since moved into the polished society of Springfield, Mass. Most of his time is spent en route between the outlying dance halls and Middlebury (in pursuit of duty); or recuperating from the after effects (over at Pearson’s), but from what little we see of him, we like him very much.

In spite of the aforementioned foibles and idiosyncrasies, we could excuse all if it were not for the fact that he has so often waked us from a peaceful slumber at Vespers with his high C. There is a time and place for everything, and the Saturday night informals are the place for that. How about it, Al?
Did you ever notice when down at the track, a cloud of dust coursing around the oval. Well, that was “Sam” running the half mile. “Sam” has always firmly believed that some day he will run one of the biggest farms in the State in the same way. Reed says that the Rutland Railroad is the one which has carried him home for these last three years and that so far he has arrived safely. But “Sam” also declares that one day when he was in a hurry he walked down and got there three minutes ahead of the train. And after our Christmas sojourn we are inclined to believe him.

There are distinguishing features about every man and “Sam” has a goodly number. Not only does he do his daily dozen around the track, but he also studies and rumor has it that he has a ready answer in Economics 11 whenever “Mac” asks for one.

But “Sam” has distinguished himself in a number of ways and he will be one of the missed members of the class when he graduates next June.

“Sam,” all the luck in the world to you.

Canton High School; Varsity Track (1, 2, 3); Cross Country (3); Winner of Tennis Tournament (1); Second place in Tennis Tournament (3).

"George," one of Ohio's representatives here at Midd, is quietness personified. While quiet, he is by no means unknown. Everyone knows him as a man of results. As a tennis player very few have been able to get the better of him in a match. Two years ago he ran away with the fall tournament, and any opponent can testify to his knowledge of the game and ability to put that knowledge into practical use. Any nice spring afternoon "George" will be found down on Porter Field, with the track team, getting ready to clean up in the pole vault.

Besides all this he is a "math shark" of no small note. Any poor Frosh in the throes of trig, will find "George" a "friend in need." On any problem that proves a sticker, a broadcast is sent for "George."

He is always willing and ready. In "George" you will find a rare combination—willingness to help anyone, anytime, and ability to help anyone at anytime.

"Up with me, up with me, into the clouds."

The photographer put on the wide angle lens and did "Joe" an injustice. "Joe" in a serious mood is not true to life. His blue eyes and golden hair render the impression of a sunset upon the Pacific and are indicative of the mild nature of the man. He has lost his girlish figure. The erstwhile "Joe" glided about the campus with fairy tread, and even now retains some of the poetry of motion that has been the envy of the campus. Someone visiting college was heard to ask, "Is that the man in the Michelin Tire advertisement?"

Freshman year "Joe's" activities were watched with pride by his classmates, and with chagrin by the Sophs. These efforts were confined to sprints from his room to the attic of South Starr. By the use of a well known silver knife "Joe" could pass from the eyes of man in a way that would make Houdini look like a street fakir.

Nothing can induce "Joe" to give up "a pound of flesh;" and from the Dean's office we learn that this frugal Scotsman saves his cuts. But let's not be too sentimental just because we all like him.

As good a versatile athlete as “Andy” seldom comes to Midd. Yet by just so much intense concentration on his athletics he has let up on his studies. Again a lot of hard luck seems to be following him around. One of the fastest men on the football team during his first year, he was injured very severely, necessitating loss in the pursuit of his studies. “Andy” is a great hunter after truth, dividing his time between the Phi Beta House, the Gym and his Starr Hall sanctuary. It is recorded that all philosophic books and otherwise are read just as fast as they are introduced into the library office. Such diligent accumulation of knowledge argues a searching mind. We only fear that “Andy” indulges too freely in producing an epicurean stomach and already in some respects he seems to reveal a close proximity to that lovable “Billy.”

“He was a man of an unbounded stomach.”—Shakespeare.
“Mike” entered Midd from Bridgeport High School in the fall of 1920 with the rest of us and his voice and smile soon won a warm spot in the hearts of all. Music is born in him. His college record as well as his high school record speaks for his ability along this line. Glee Club, Mandolin Club, Choir, and midnight serenades are the wine of his life. He is an absolute cure for the blues. He will make you forget your troubles if he can find any instrument, from a Jew’s Harp to a Bass Horn. If no instrument is at hand, he can whistle and sing. A moonlight night, a mandolin and “Mike” would win anybody. But our popular songbird, who has graced the campus with his presence, now has a stronger affinity for Springfield, Vermont, than for the other side of the hill.

Whatever comes up “Mike” is always the same, never crabby, never surprised, always smiling and ready with a good word. He absorbs more kidding than any other man on the campus and is never known to get sore. There is yet to be found a man who is an enemy to “Mike” Lorenzo.

It keeps us ever on the lookout to see just what this Chem shark is about. He might do anything and likewise he might become anything. We only worry that he might become nothing. Gifted with a good share of gray matter he is pushing towards Phi Bete. John seldom partakes in any keen athletic engagement but heartily loves sports. He is inclined to leave the other sex alone. We are not surprised for we suspect that the nutmegger has a whole woman's hat factory in Danbury. John is quite a card shark, from early infancy revealing adeptness in that particular occupation. But it is merely by the way an avocation; chemistry is his real vocation.

Here at last we have him, in spite of his mysterious and sudden manner of appearing and disappearing. While Morpheus may not, we will forgive "Ye Ed" for this wanderlust habit when consideration is given to the over-abundant duties heaped upon him. Since "D'Haydn's" impression of Democrat paddles the first quiet (?) evening of his Republican campaign tour of Porter Field, he has victoriously penetrated the field of oratory, but uncontent, is trying to fathom the depths of news writing with fair success.

"The Amalgamated and Petrified Secret Order of Women Haters" looked forward to a new member when "Dee" said, "I'm through with them for life." But Alas and Alack, that was before he fell into the Pirate's den of Greenwich Village and was kidnapped to the "Fiji" Islands, while exposed to the study of Greek at Columbia's Summer Session. Although his "Fiji" and "P. L." may claim him as their Pal, we still assert the right to his worthwhile friendship and only wish we too had a share of that million-mile line.

Behold! We have with us today, George W. Peck, III, one of Vermont's most promising and versatile young men. His accomplishments are many and varied. One will always find him in the center of Middlebury's social life, where he is constantly at his best, doling out a line, which to the fair co-eds is "so irresistible." George has high aspirations of becoming an aeronautical engineer some day, and this is not hard to believe when we see him make some of his flying leaps on his motorcycle.

His track ability is by no means the least of his attainments. As a cinder path artist, he certainly shakes a wicked form over the hurdles.

Despite all of George's good qualities, we like him, and some day, there is a slight possibility, he may become a man of whom Middlebury College and that Mecca of Vermont, south of here, may well be proud. He has also been prominent in winter sports, and has been chosen this year to manage the Outing Club.

Pratt is one of the quiet fellows of the Class of '24. He never did wonders on the football field, or the baseball diamond, or indulged in any other ostentatious form of college activity. His favorite sport is worrying the professors. Any professor that can teach as fast as this quiet fellow can learn well deserves a place on the college line-up.

Often you can see Pratt out on the campus with a lot of business-like looking surveying instruments. We wonder if he isn’t making plans to remodel the world, let alone the College campus.

Again his perpetual smile is the cause of great wonderment. He must be always happy for he always has friends—this argues a pretty good disposition lying behind it.

'Tis as if a character of one of the good Stevenson's books came forth to tell us of the sea. Our friendly Buccaneer teeming with sea experience came amongst us at the end of the War. Just when the maddening aftermath of sensuous King Jazz got the sway. From Blackbeard to Admiral Sims there never was a godlier soul than "Sas." We may thank our good stars that the ocean did not claim him. Hardly amongst us but he became the true friend of all. Aside from landing the Kingship of our class during the Sophomore year he was a man in that terrible berth of Chairman of the Sophomore Rules Committee. The buffets received in the Navy hung lightly upon his fighting spirit. He is not alone a mere office seeker. It seems almost idle to waste our time offering "Sas" such appraisement—he's not used to literary nectarines—on the contrary we can but offer praises for what he has accomplished. Bluebeard had his Fatima; "Sas" has his "Camel;" Antony had his Cleopatra; "Sas" has his "Dot." His achievements in playing tiddlywinks in Pearson's is only a momentarily lapse to the time when on a South Sea Island he used to throw coconuts at idle nigger wenches. Taking to heart Briney's ardent astronomy lectures, "Sas" ever and anon loses himself in idle dissertations upon the famous solar system of America.

"Hence, loathed melancholy."
This young man is a product of the Windy City which he claims is famous for its stockyards and himself. When he came to college he thought the Mexican border paid rent but now after a glimpse of the blasé life of Middlebury his views have changed. Many of the uninitiated wonder at the appellation "Cherry" but those who know him better think that the real way to spell it should be with an "S"; others think he has a French sweetheart and spell it "Cherie." However he got it, we are sure he came by it very honorably, in spite of his reticence when the subject is alluded to.

Now for the customary eulogy: which is a part of every good write-up. When Shakespeare said, "Still waters run deep," he might have had in mind "Cherry," for this young hopeful certainly knows his stuff even if he doesn't spread it all over the campus.

"Men of few words are the best men."—Shakespeare.
Here we have before us not only one of the busiest men but one of the most versatile men of the class of '24. He works according to the theory that "lost time is never found" and to us one of his days seem to be thirty-six hours long. He is one man in the class of '24 that we look upon to have a great future. We expect that in twenty-five or thirty years from now he will be to the College what Battell and Hepburn have been. The students will be talking about going over to take a plunge in "Simmons' Swimming Tank" or maybe about the new "Simmons' Stadium" or possibly about the new "Simmons' Dormitory for Women."

What we wonder now is whether or not he will make Phi Beta Kappa. We surely hope he will as we love to see a man with the key who is not a book-worm, and one who goes into various activities and also one who picks his courses as to their value and not as to whether they are easy.

We never heard of Millerton until he came here and now we hope to have more boys from Millerton if they are anything like "Simmy."

"The laborer is worthy of his reward."
And here we have another one of those hard-working, Rutland youths. They are all more or less industrious, but here we gaze upon the countenance of one who has been so busy that as he says it, “Don’t get up much for breakfast.”

“Breeze” has been a member of the Glee Club for two good seasons. Both his voice and his violin have served him in good stead during his stay at Midd. “Breeze” has pushed the bow in the string quartet for some time and doesn’t understand why the audience applauds so vigorously after each number, but there is a reason.

Any time when you feel at all musical, step down to Gale’s room and the chances are that you will find some harmony. During his Freshman year there was plenty of it, as Mother Mason can testify. And there were some other doings in Room 9 which were not musical. For further information ask Mother.

We certainly hope that this gentleman will continue to prosper and that he may always have the facilities for playing which he now possesses.

Reared amid the vices and temptations of the great city of North Creek, N. Y.; educated amid the fumes of nicotine that permeate the dens of Painter Hall; in love with one, and only one (and there could be no other); this minister's son believes that civilization is moving pole-ward and not heaven-ward.

But outside of these faults what would "Dee" be without "P. L." and what would "P. L." be without "Dee"? They live, move and have their being together. The only time they're apart is when one of 'em decides to visit on the Hill—or elsewhere. However, outside of the household duties which this youth performs, which include waking "Dee" three minutes before 8 A.M. in order for him to meet an eight o'clock and handing him a breakfast as he rushes out of the door—he manages to look after the destinies of our cinder path artists, and from all reports he is most efficient in this field. We wonder how he treats the ladies?

Paul, old "Pal," you're the best we have and here's wishing you the best of luck in everything you seek to do.

"I am the eldest of Paul, Noah, and Enoch Squires!"
Hark—the herald angels sing!
Farmer "Red" Thompson from the Bay State Farm Bloc, the second chip off the same block to land in our midst. "Tommy" is a constant source of amusement by his willing interpretation of farmer dialect. He can easily be distinguished from the rest of us by his brilliant red hair or by the pipe forever dangling from the corner of his mouth. Painter Hall and Thompson are inseparable as he has vowed to stay there until he graduates.

"Tommy" is following in the footsteps of his "big" brother by taking all the bug courses offered. He gets more pleasure in getting up at five o'clock in the morning and going on a bird walk than anyone else possibly could get at a dance.

Despite this peculiar hobby of his he is a great all-round fellow, and the kind that makes a lasting good impression. We wish we had more like him.

"Up from the meadows rich with corn."
Our class boasts a good many nutmegs and here is another just as spicy as the rest. You don’t get to know “Phil” very quickly, but when you do you realize there’s lots of pep hidden beneath his nature. This year finds him one of the ancient, honorable South Starr Night Riders. More is the pity that this ardent Daniel Webster hasn’t spent more time on the books. Given a good mind he doesn’t always get the benefits he might from it, believing that you can burn the candle at both ends. From the outside we see what might have been; and he stands askance, happy and carefree. He’s energetic, hits the courses he likes best for a million, lets a few others slide casually, gets along well with everybody and makes his chief essay at fame behind the doors of the Debating Society. Too bad he was led wrong by those direful Doe boys of Freshman days.

“Yet once more, O ye laurels, and once more”—he’s thinking of Demosthenes on the seashore.

TENANTS HARBOR, MAINE

South Harbor High School; German Club (2, 3).

Torrey is one of the hardest workers in the class. Of course at the end of his dreams and work there hangs a Phi Bete key, but it is to be well earned. He works all day at his studies and all night as a telephone operator. Surely his persistent energy is to be rewarded and though he does not shine as an athlete it is readily apparent why not. His modesty and quietness assure him a place in the hearts of his friends. We only wish that more might be seen of him. We don’t have much to say about him for we think that he will show most readily all that is in him when the time comes.

“In easy learning germs of failure lurk; he gains a key to all who learn to work.”
Lives of great men all remind us that our future lies ahead. George, despite the fact that he was born very young, has properly put his future in front of him in so short a time that we are astonished. We make no predictions, and cannot bring ourselves to detract from that future by putting his past before him.

Little variations in George's ordinarily quiet life are not derogatory in the least, so we would not keep too much from the public scrutiny. Minor offences, such as "picking up" a girl in the White River Junction Post Office, are condoned as being romantic, but when innocence mistakes hard cider for sweet, we must raise our hands in horror. His odorous exhalations, fragrant with the dew of apples, almost broke up the rushing season. George used to be knock-kneed, but taking one of Professor Howard's jokes seriously, "Day by day, in every way," he straightened out his physical imperfections. In fact, he got 'em too straight with the result seen in the snapshot.

"Oh! What may man within him hide
Tho' Angel on the outward side."
This “night errant” and congenial soul thrives on twenty-four hours of hard work a day. We can’t fathom how he does it, but such a bundle of energy argues a whole lot. When the end of the war put the skids on the Navy, Charlie, an ardent tar, was shipped to Midd; thus the class of ’24 was lucky enough to claim him as one of its loyal members. Right off the bat he began to show the versatility of a good athlete and a good social fellow. If the director-general of the power plant down on the Otter didn’t claim so much of his time he might have got a long ways on his athletic ability, but as it stands now he must gain some of his sleep in the daytime. As an avocation his art ability marks him as a coming genius. It kind of looks as if he were on the path to put old Raphael out of business. His florid artistic display in this Kaleidoscope is a real credit to any class and anyone. After a little finishing up in the Latin Quarter of Paris we argue a famous career for him.

In some way we think this prosperous gentleman missed his calling. He should have gone to Hollywood and become a second Will Rogers. But, be that as it may, Watty has, after a recess of one year, returned to the class of which he has reason to be proud—namely the class of 1924. And upon his return, he has taken up his duties, and in both the Glee Club and the Choir his melodious voice may be heard. Yes! "Watty" has a very good voice and it is said that he doesn't have to try out, even, to make the Glee Club. We have tried our best to get "Watty" to tell us what he has been doing these last few months of his absence, but he remains as silent as the far-famed Sphinx.

Besides being a songster of the better class, this gentleman is also a musical master in other ways. He will, upon request, show you a beautiful Uke which he earnestly declares he made with his own hands. It certainly is a dandy, especially when "Watty" plays it and sings.

Lester upholds the traditions of Dorchester with every ounce of his energy. He is proud of the fact that he lives near Boston. There may be more than one reason. Who knows?

We are very glad to have "Watty" with us again, and we sincerely hope he will stay and graduate with us.

"Dan" has had the coveted honor of being a member of the K. P. at Hepburn Commons, something which is given only to privileged members, per order of the Dean.

He is always faithful and a willing helper to anyone in need. His strong personality and perseverance should prove a great aid in his future work.

"Doc Aristotle" Wheeler matured under the sunny moons of Connecticut. He dragged himself through Bridgeport High School, but escaped with life and limb. Although Bridgeport is a seaside joint, "Doc's" affinity for H₂O was decidedly negative until after his arrival amongst us, at which time his introduction to this branch of personal chemistry was quite unique. "Doc’s" appearance in the Freshman Parade instilled in us such an appreciation for our dear old Billy Farrell, that we voted "Doc" the prize. "Doc's" success in the desire of his life is assured, you'd claim, if you saw him wrestling books which would baffle a professional strong man. Yes, all New York's libraries are pleading "Doc" to take charge of them. "Doc's" kindheartedness crops out every once in a while. He keeps away from the other side of the "Hill" just because he wished to give the other fellows a chance.

We search in utter failure and abstraction to find the words in old Noah Webster's to really give you an inkling into this demure chap's character. Hailing from the star of the North, he seems to imbibe that star dust into his system. As a track man he is a pole vault record breaker and as a scholar he answered to Pope's nature when he said: "He lisped in numbers and numbers came." We don't have to worry about the outcome of this good-natured chap. He is going to make a good surgeon, already it would seem that he would make the Pasteur Institute look like a spoonful of whipped cream in the wind. We just love to sit here and pen many enthusiastic little sentences on his merits. But it's a waste of time with him. He's too modest to have you read them. One thing remains to be said. He is the supreme dictator of the handball court.

"Jud" is the man behind the guns or rather the scenes. Mack Sennett has nothing on him when it comes to picking a beauty chorus and it is rumored that Ziegfeld wanted him—in fact, told him that he could be scot free to do as he pleased—but "Jud" said, "Nothing doing, I can get a better chorus in Midd than on Broadway and besides they have free suppers in the Methodist Church."

He is generally referred to as the little man behind the big pipe, and the resulting smoke screen is apt to hide his identity. But he sure has a mean way with the ladies. He tells them when to paint and where to paint, when to laugh and when to cry, and yet they think he is "just too cute for words." Must be his cave man methods.

"Framed in the prodigality of nature."
“Win’s” appreciation of the good things in life, as well as those worthwhile, denote a certain bigness in his character. He once said that I was the best roommate he ever had. Moreover, he changed what he calls his mind, which is a sign of mental growth—a faculty that put Gladstone in the Hall of Fame. When “Win” came to college he had the “brass key” in perspective. It’s still in perspective; that is, it has a vanishing point. He thought that perspiring persistence and periodic perception were the right mixture, but that’s where you are wrong, “Win”—personal persuasion goes a long way.

“Win” may not be able to sing soprano, but he hits a few high notes in the Chapel spire. And if you ask him, he will tell you that there are no bats in his belfry. Nevertheless, it won’t stand inspection.

The lad however has his trials. The last was on a tragic trip through the trade winds. A troupe of trained tropical cops treated “Win” to a tricky tribunal. Tried by the treacherous treatment, he trimly transcended a transom, triumphantly trudged his way homeward. So tranquilly treat tribute as if it had truly transpired.

Adeline is another one of those musicians who disturb our slumbers. Now aren't you sorry, "Angie"? But she doesn't strum all the time, oh no, for when she isn't out walking, or down in the social hall, she is studying. Which reminds us; a good way to reduce would be to fall in—for little things, like dessert for instance, have no attractions for "Angie" when the social hall is waiting. "Angie" believes in going early to avoid the rush!

"Angie" is always welcome and always an addition to any group, for we never saw her otherwise than happy. Perhaps it's the good "fetching up" she had in the Eddy House. "Angie" claims athletic and musical honors also, and we all vote her a good sport and a worthy member of our brilliant '24.
At the first football game we ever attended we became conscious of "Mart's" presence when we heard some one call out lustily, "That a pepper boys!" Her athletic interests were soon recognized, for she was faithful even to those 5:00 A.M. meets on Porter Field. But her athletics have been supplemented by many things such as truck driving and acting as freight man on swiftly moving expresses!

Her only annoyance in life is an alarm clock. Never is it otherwise than a source of irritation. But once this necessary evil is silenced she is like a sunny day with her motto: "Say it with smiles."

Her good nature, dry humor, and ready laugh are all valuable assets that few people can resist.

Strange how people do change. We wonder why Helen decided that the charms of a chemical career no longer attracted her. But she seems to console herself with the movies. Helen is one of our true movie fans, and we expect in later years to find her the Editor of the Answer Man's column.

Helen also has a fondness for the P. O. Can it be that someone has "pierced" her heart?

No one is more obliging than Helen and she is kindness itself when a "feller needs a friend."
The Maison has attractions for Emma also. We wouldn't be so bold as to enquire why. We will say though, Emma sure can rattle off the Francais with an enviable speed.

But speaking of speed, Emma certainly can devise the most mischievous schemes and plots. To all appearances she is a quiet, demure young lady, but just wait—some night you come home and find your room occupied with satanic apparitions, or you might not find any room at all. If Emma makes life as interesting for the Maison this year as she did for Hillcrest last year, we can guarantee that they will never be bored; only we would advise all inmates to purchase Yale locks.

Emma is also a musician, and no amateur either. Her talents are many and varied, for she is also literary, artistic, clever, witty and entertaining.

Burr and Burton Seminary; College Choir (1, 2, 3); Women's Glee Club (2, 3); Spanish Club (2, 3); Dramatic Club (2, 3); Mandolin Club (3); English Club (3); Kaleidoscope Board (3).

Now is our chance to tell tales, and get even with "Jess" for disturbing our gentle slumbers with her beloved mandolin. Jessie is a musical little soul and no one in Pearson's would dispute said statement. However, we forgive her, for you would forgive Jessie Jean anything, when she flashes those dimples at you.

And the other side of the Hill appreciates those dimples likewise. We know how many times a day we hear "Phone for Miss Bennett." But the great secret is not yet told! Just take a stolen glance any evening into a Pearson's corridor and there you will see "Jess," poised on one toe like a veritable pupil of Pavlova. Yes, Jessie is our star dancer and many are the entertainments she has graced. But light though her feet may be, and ready her wit and dimples, her head contains a clever little brain that knows how to juggle the A's out of the Professors as well as any of us.

Spotlight for Jessie Jean.
It still remains a mystery why Bat. Cot. is in such good condition after “Billy” has lived there for three years. However, with the exception of a few broken lights, a few broken pieces of furniture and a few empty pillow covers, it is pretty much the same. And say—do you remember hanging those clothes out to air on the telephone wire?

As a House Chairman, “Billy” certainly can lay down the law and make the Freshmen toe the mark. Don’t forget your youth. You certainly were never guilty of sins of omission, were you, “Billy”?

Now it’s time to say something nice, but our space and vocabulary are too limited to say all the nice things we know. But we know this for a fact: “‘24” could never have scraped along without “Billy’s” droll humor and delightful jokes. We would advise her, however, after she has burned the midnight oil in faithful study for physiology (don’t we know all about it though?) to take every precaution against accidents.

Now one and all let’s give a good cheer.

_Hurrah for “Billy”!_

"Florrie is our butterfly."

No one but "Florrie" could dance through classes with that careless sang-froid, undisturbed by minor details such as unprepared lessons. We of English 19, know. "Florrie" blesses the Maison, this year, and they say it does not curb her flow of speech (?). So say we all of us.

Talk about exceptions—how about red hair and good temper? "Florrie's" sunny disposition is the envy of us all.

Her talents are sundry and varied, ranging from dramatics and singing to writing poetry when the occasion demands.

We might predict many nice things for the future but after all we wonder if perhaps she won't fill Roger's Plate.
Here comes Miss Peggy Brown and (look carefully) what’s that we see under her arm? Why it’s an S. E. P. S’alright, Peggy, youth must have its fling. Say, Peggy, do you remember those good old days at Weybridge and the five hundred table? How you did walk away with those cards! And while we’re reminiscing, do you remember that old Bat. Cot. gang, and what was it they called you? Oh yes, the “June Bug Chaser.”

We won’t tell any more, Peggy. We know you are quite grown up and dignified now you are under the Maison’s wing. (Funny how they all get that way?)

S’long Peggy, Bon Voyage.

Helen seems to have a lease on the gymnasium and athletic field for she appears to gravitate between the two. Basketball, volley ball, hockey, any little thing like that, is listed with capital letters among Helen’s accomplishments. Have you been in her room? We wonder if she has a monopoly on the M’s.

Helen can appreciate a good joke too. We would recognize that hearty laugh anywhere. Also her posters; for Helen possesses an unusual amount of artistic ability. And did we say she could sing? Just happen in at the Y. W. some Tuesday night and judge for yourself.

Helen is a fine all around girl, a good student and a friend one is fortunate to own.
If we should be guilty of referring to our “long, long memory” we might remember certain instances of our Freshman year and certain “judgment parties,” but, of course, being afflicted with true Christian upbringing, we never tell tales. But Barbara knows! Barbara has outgrown her pranks of Freshman year and come into her own and proper sphere, the ballroom, where she holds undisputed sway. And now of course you are picturing a butterfly—but you are wrong for we know of no one more conscientious, capable and reliable when real work needs to be done.

Barbara is one of those desirable young ladies whose swains keep the “hello” girl busy.

Allow us to present "Cutie," our Lady Mary athlete. Winsome, sweet and diminutive, who would ever guess that here is one of our brilliant athletic stars? Nay it is even whispered that she is making a collection of M's to exhibit in the near future in her—but we'll never tell.

"Cutie's" ambition is to teach Phys. Ed. and then again she yearns for the Home Ec. House. But whatever her destiny we'll always bid on "Cutie."

"He saw her charming, but he saw not half
The charms her downcast modesty concealed."
Minnie is another of our quiet ones, steady, reliable and loyal. Her main ambition in life seems to be to inhabit the Chem Lab., for Minnie is always sure to be there when not at home. She may tell you she's flunking again, but those little envelopes that we are so familiar with, are entirely unknown in her college career.

She has no particular leaning in the direction of athletics but she supports the games by cheering as lustily as lungs will allow.

Minnie is noted for her red cheeks and happy smile.

"Where is thy learning, hath thy toil
O'er books consumed the midnight oil?"
When “Lanky” first arrived at Middlebury, all the little Freshmen looked up in awe at this tall and presumably dignified Senior. But we soon learned that “Lanky” was a “sure enuf” Freshman and an unusual one too; for what a tremendous amount of brains her tall stature supports! We weren’t at all surprised when she walked off with all the honors in that memorable Horace class. We fear “Lanky” is one of those destined to sport a gold key, but ’tain’t her fault, she can’t help it.

Then too, here we have a real artist (though let us whisper it for she is very modest of the fact.) Just glance at her Horace notebook or recall the many posters for various occasions which were products of her clever fingers.

But “Lanky” is also a host of fun and her aid in any amateur performance is sure to make it more popular.

Oh, by the by, just ask “Lanky” about that night in the sleeper, in an upper berth!
Ruth Eddy
MIDDLEBURY, VERMONT
Middlebury High School; Apollo Club (3); Horace Second Prize (2).

Someone told us on the quiet once that Ruth occasionally gets noisy, but we are inclined to doubt that statement for when she speaks she seldom raises her voice above the merest “Russell.” But this soft speech is effective, in the classroom anyway, where the A’s tumble all over themselves to reach her.

We can’t think of a single naughty thing to say about Ruth; perhaps it is because she is so seldom seen on the Hill, for Ruth is one of our “Midd man born, and Midd man bred.” We know it is our loss however, for a single glance at her Horace notebook reveals the artistic talents which she quietly conceals.

She may be seen any day at the Library, however, where she seems quite at home among all those mysterious reference books. 'Nuff said.

Well, Ruthie, we’re still waiting for that joke.
Here’s “Rosie our Posie,” blooming the whole year round, as fourth floor Pearson’s used to sing, Freshman year. And right then and there how she did start to conquer the books. She walked right out on the road to knowledge and has been hiking along ever since at a breakneck speed. But even so she was never guilty of burning the midnight oil, for Helen is one of those conscientious souls who always get their work done on time. But there’s a limit, Helen;—such as rushing up from first floor to fourth, during fire-drill, to come down the fire escape?

This year we find Helen installed at Hillcrest where she is invaluable, doing duty as “Baby Ben” for the Maison. And we mustn’t partir without mentioning that memorable nickname—“button-hook” acquired from asking, (yes we’re going to tell) so many questions.

There, we’ve done our worst for you, Helen, and why shouldn’t we, for everyone knows all those fine qualities which would overflow our space.

Norma Foster?—Ah, Yes, Chocolate cake!—Chicken!—Thanksgiving feeds! That's what she is noted for. She plays a mandolin. It used to be a ukulele back in Freshman days, but now it has turned into a mandolin, and so the Mandolin Club is where she shines.

Norma has a heap of pep. She loves to dance and sing, but, best of all, she likes nothing better than to sit out on Pearson's steps with a "few other girls" and make glorious Harmony while the moon peeps down upon her.

Stunts are right in her line. She always knows just what to do and when. In other words she is one that can be depended upon.
"Carrie" is a firm believer in co-education. We won't say why, as it might lead you to wrong conclusions. Carolyn is very demure, but appearances are often deceiving. Oh, those eyes! Her laugh is also infectious as any Hillcrestite could tell you. And if the truth be known, "Carrie" might be said to be guilty of having a corner on cards.

We mustn't part without at least mentioning the time when "Carrie" put her Home Ec. knowledge to good use in the Hillcrest corridors. A dusty remembrance, N'est-ce-pas, "Carrie"?

We wish that “Harry” might live on the Hill with us, but we wonder—how could we ever keep quiet hours?

To see “Harry” in action one should be on hand about 8.15 any morning on the campus and they would see her breathlessly rushing for her eight o’clock class, incidentally disputing the established theory that “large bodies move slowly.”

Her large tribe of admirers say that she is an expert swimmer, and we know for a fact that she is a formidable basketball foe. And as for being a hiking enthusiast—we hand her the cup without further parley.

The great ambition of "Double-decker’s" life is to become long and limber especially in the region immediately posterior to the chin. Easy-going and carefree she saunters about the campus, her semi-smile ready to burst into bloom at a moment's notice. She wears wrapped about her that air of contentedness and serenity which is the envy of more than one care-burdened young acquaintance, while her happy giggle is guaranteed to send away the blues. “Janesy” can mix business and pleasure to exactly the right consistency. No task is so absorbing or difficult that the humor of it is lost on her; and she does have tasks too, for she is one of the Home Ec. inmates.

Her sense of humor is profound, her laugh infectious, her friends many, and her friendship well worth having.

Woe be to the presumptuous individual who dares to select quiet hours as the proper time to make her presence known in the house!

We were formerly introduced to Helen as the “most typical flapper of Midd,” but now that we know her we are a bit sceptical as to the appropriateness of the title. True she has many of the flapper's superficial qualities; a fun-loving nature, laughing eyes and an unlimited devotion to dancing, but if the truth be known, Helen is as deep as any of the more serious.

Dramatics are one of Helen's strong points. And not only does she grace the “boards” but we find her also behind the scenes, occupied with quantities of muslin and we have a sneaking suspicion that “Jud” couldn’t run his plays without her assistance. Formerly Helen hasn’t been noticeably enthusiastic about athletics but this year we find her interested in track—ing, so we presume she is trying to get the other side of the Hill interested in our Health Rules, especially the one concerned with “one hour’s exercise a day.”

All in all, we vote for Helen as the best sort of a pal, ever ready for a good time, or diligent work, as the occasion demands.
Those of us who live at the Maison would suggest that Helen take a room near the telephone booth for convenience's sake.

Helen has a line and on it she strings nothing but dates. It is whispered that last Christmas she was presented with a string of dates each one bearing the name of some chosen cavalier.

Helen must study once in a while, for in the classroom she is never known to be without an answer. But we think, personally, that she spends most of her time with that "uke." Not that we object, for Helen's cheerful jazzy little songs are what help to make life bearable.

Helen is a jolly good sport and we'll say a good word with enthusiasm for her anytime.

Janice is one of our quiet and dignified Juniors, that is, to all appearances, but don't be alarmed for that is just her camouflage. If you should drop in at Pearson's some evening, you would find her entertaining the bunch with, "Now girls, I guess as how," and "Aren't we the berries, though."

But it is diplomatic to retain her favor, for she it is who knows all our marks those last critical days when we all begin to worry!

Janice has had aspirations in several directions, with Spanish predominating. We aren't mentioning her aspirations in the direction of the best authorized method of killing rats. It's a sore subject, isn't it, Janice?

We will say this though—the Campus and other literary publications could never have survived without the aid of our efficient Janice. As a business woman Janice ranks par excellence. But as for a good friend and scout—words fail to express our appreciation for those fine qualities which we know Janice to possess. Adeline came into prominence our Sophomore year when we were notified that she was to judge our major and minor transgressions at Hillcrest as House Chairman. In discharging her official duties at Hillcrest no one could have been more efficient, punctilious and scrupulous than she. We feel sure that she would be a great addition to the "Pinkerton Detective Bureau." Ask her how she discovered why the light wouldn't go on, on the Hillcrest porch.

Adeline has an unlimited capacity for gathering J. B.'s, but withal is a fine student and friend.

"Willie" is our youngest, but hates to admit it, and she does her best to impress us with her dignity. We know that she isn't a grind but still the A's come flocking to her.

And then, "Willie" has much musical talent. You can usually find her in the choir, but in the same place twice (?).

Erminie of the Maison Française steps forth, dainty, winsome and petite. Music is her ruling passion and you would be convinced of this could you see her at a concert, oblivious to the mundane world. And then, too, Erminie is no mean musician herself.

Coincident with her musical accomplishments is French, which Erminie chatters so fluently as to put us all in the shade.

Erminie is conscientious always, serious many times, hilarious some times, friendly and cheerful all times.

“When her veering gait
And every motion of her starry train
Seem governed by a strain
Of music, audible to her alone.”

It was a happy day for us when “Chicken” scratched into college. She came a little late, but in time to complete the happy brood already settled on fourth floor of Pearson’s. It didn’t take us long to discover that “Chick’s” dearest possession was a map, a rather unusual map whose routes led to various corners, no, not of the earth, but of her own room. This map was called “Memory” and all courses of psychology have failed to dispense with it.

“Chick” has always been more or less a source of worry to us and we have had to guide her carefully for fear she would get lost in the Biology Lab. or get elected to the Faculty of the French School.

If you want an idea or a suggestion, go to “Chick” and your problem is solved. If you want a friend, someone true blue, just go to “Chick’s” door and you will find her ready.

“'Tis far off;
And rather like a dream than an assurance
That my remembrance warrants.”
When Velma entered this fall she informed us that she had eight years of French on her shoulders and wanted more—hence her happy migration from Brown. We also heard plans of our Mademoiselle being in a Paris designing establishment a few years hence. It all "listened well," particularly when we heard her parlez a little and saw some of the creations contained in her wardrobe. Lately, however, she has seemed to be quite absorbed in Home Ec. and we slyly surmise that she may be "Docked" over here in good old Vermont.

Vivacious, individual, and charming, "Pillie" is much to be admired. We like her curls, her blue eyes and happy ways. Our only regret is that she didn’t come sooner.
Who doesn't know a certain member of the Junior Class with Titian hair and a Spanish vocabulary? Yes, we all know Sadie, who, during her Freshman year had her abode on Weybridge Street, where many of lesser fame have begun their career. Even then Sadie took the honors in Spanish and Latin, unhindered by any such minor detail as lessons unprepared. But Chemistry proved her Waterloo, and who could blame her?

Sadie's executive ability is unlimited; her knack of managing anything from K. P.'s to a Spanish Club meeting is characteristic.

Sadie is kind hearted and sympathetic to the nth degree, but, let anyone chance to breathe a word of protest against "Waterbury" and Thor with his classic thunderbolt has nothing on Sadie!

"A merry heart goes all the way,
Your sad tires in a mile-a."

Cobleskill High School; Spanish Club (2, 3); Apollo Club (3); Mandolin Club (3).

“Genteel in personage
Conduct and equipage,
Noble by heritage
Generous and free.”

Ask “Spotsy” where she hails from and she will invariably answer, “Albany, that is, near Albany, about forty miles west of Albany.” You might be led by this answer to believe that she isn’t very keen about her home town, but not so. She really has a great deal of affection for Howe’s Cave, so much, in fact, that she has obtained an interest in a (Van) Wagon concern—which is situated there, in which she bids fair to hold a life interest.

“Spotsy” left the hill this year for the Spanish House, and tells us that she is going to be an interpreter. Personally we think her specialty is Home Economics.

Love, words, deeds, and sweet smiles are what she gives to college life.
But along came Ruth
And to tell the truth
She stole our hearts away.

If we should peer into the future a few years hence we would see “Squigs” the manager and idol of a playground. Her fame thereon from London Bridge to Hockey is widespread. But her talents are by no means limited to the athletic field. Just recall those decorations at the Sophomore Hop. And we’ve “heered tell” that “Squigs” is learning to parley-vous at the Maison this year.

“Squigs” has the characteristics that make for success; the energy and capacity to complete things once begun. And last, but not least, that proverbial sense of humor that proclaims her a good sport and a welcome friend at every door.

Central High School; German Club (2, 3); Women's Glee Club (2, 3).

"Who is Sylvia, What is she?"
Ask English, 19??.

Sylvia, with sphinx-like complacency, sits upon her throne and contemplates Egypt. Her throne is her imagination, and Egypt is her world. From thence she weaves the plots for her clever stories.

Naturally a nature like Sylvia's is not altogether known to the common crowd. But the few privileged to know her agree that at times Sylvia descends from her oriental cushions and deigns to become quite human and, yes, funny. Sylvia's humor is of a rare and delectable sort which once tasted is never forgotten. Doubtless some day we shall find her in the Senate, poking fun at D. Hay—perhaps. Who knows?

Emily Sisson—Serious—Sober—Sad.
No! No! No!

We can always remember when the laugh was on Emily, but stop quick, for Emily laughed too. She always did. She took high honors for keeping the morale of the Gables top hole, Freshman year. But here is a little inside information about our friend. Can you believe that Emily was one of those people who had so much—doubt? Maybe! Ambition? Maybe! Appetite? Maybe! But we’re true to Emily, so we’ll never tell. Emily counts among the famous charter members of the Home Ec. House. We know she will need the experience, n’est-ce pas, Emily?

What would ’24 have done without your smile and giggle, Emily?

Maiden so gentle and sweet
Loan me your dress—so pretty and chic?
Surely, which one do you want?

What would Bat. Cot. do without Frances? Especially Mart, as “Fran” is the only person who can persuade her to wear a coat in winter! This is typical of Frances, for she is always doing a service for someone.

Frances is tall and dark and dignified, but we suspect that within the precincts of that hilarious Bat. Cot. bunch she can hold her own with the gayest.

Fun, good advice, solace, anything you wish is always in stock at the Smith General Store.

“He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper, but he is more happy who can suit his temper to any circumstances.”
Let us introduce you to one of our quiet Juniors, Margaret Stearns, undoubtedly at your service. We do not feel as if we really knew Margaret even after three years, although the blame can perhaps be laid on Weybridge Street.

Margaret made her debut Sophomore year when she played for us occasionally at morning chapel. Besides her knowledge of the organ, we hear hints of ability with the piano.

So much for the musical side; personally she is a warm friend and a faithful student. We have but one fault to find—she seems to be concealing something from us. Underneath that calmly quiet exterior we feel sure there is a wealth of fun and we wish it would come forth for just a bit, now and then.

"Come and give us a taste of your quality."

"Safe in the hallowed quiets of the past."

“Here is to ‘Dot’ the queen of our class,
In all the wide world was n’er such a lass.”

We think the good genie must have endowed “Dot” with more than her share of virtues. Her capacity for leadership, her ready and capable service and her true friendship have endeared her to ’24. But “Dot” is not a sweet and virtuous little goddess on a pedestal. What about those escapades of Freshman and Sophomore year;—especially as regards those lunches? This year “Dot” graces the Home Ec. house and we extend to it our heartiest sympathy. Beware Ye Home Ecers when “Dot” is at the helm.

“Dot” was our Student Government delegate to far-off Virginia but she returned with this “bon mot,” that she found nothing in the South which could equal the “Savages” (?) of the North.

We might put on our seer’s eye-specs and predict all sorts of nice things for “Dot,” but why bother, because we all know they will happen anyway.

There is no limit to her stick-to-it-iveness and we fully expect to see her occupying the Presidential chair and reigning with a firm and steady hand. Helen is also one of our students who does not let the scholastic grass grow under her feet. And as for her wit—it is sharp as the sharpest and can send a whole room into convulsions by her funny stories.

Helen is full of fun and the possessor of a broad and optimistic outlook on life, due perhaps to her stay at the Maison.

Edris introduced herself to the public of Middlebury as the incomparable “Mr. Ross.” Before this event her dramatic and musical (?) abilities had been hidden fires, so to speak, but her reputation is established now for all time. Not that Edris was unknown before that famous act! Certainly not, for she it was who upheld our Freshmen dignity and honor as representative in Student Government Council, not to mention being House Chairman of the Eddy House. From all of which you might conclude that Edris is a stern and dignified personage. Such, however, is not the case. Ask any inmate of Bat Cot.

Full of dry humor, wit and fun, Edris makes things lively wherever she may be, and for that extremely innocent expression—mistrust it. Clever as she is at playing jokes on others, she is equally as good at taking them when the tables are turned; witness such occasions as being locked out of her room for the night and forced to resort to the roof, etc., etc.

A true and jolly companion and friend, we'll say a good word for Edris anytime anywhere.

Paging Miss Margaret Tomasi of Barre, known to her most intimate friends as “Maggie.” But sh! she doesn’t care for that appellation.

One of “Tommy’s” most characteristic features is that coiffure which never loses its trimness even during a strenuous basketball fray. Second to that comes her love of gesticulating, which really is dangerous to anyone within a five-foot radius, especially when she is absorbed in a complex verb study! By which of course you have gathered that “Tommy” is a linguist and one of unusual ability. She may be majoring in languages but Home Ec. occupies a fair share of her time, and tease as we will, we can never seem to discover any ulterior motive. Her anxious watching for the northern mail furnishes the only clue.

“Tommy” has a carefully inattentive classroom air which is very misleading however, for the marks come tripping along to meet her with A’s in abundance. But besides the three R’s “Tommy” has also the three S’s:

Sports,
Social activities,
Stage dancing.

And what more could anyone wish?

Gone? Well now I can tell you my secrets
And what do you think of that?
Edna came to college
And she lived in Pearson's Hall.
She started climbing early
But she didn’t mind at all.

She didn’t stay on fourth floor,
Only once in a while,
But when she was around there
Things hummed in a wonderful style

But everybody here knows "Patsy,"
And everybody here loves "Pat,"
For she can dance and sing all day,
But I don’t need to tell you that.

Oh what we couldn't tell about Olive! Especially about the attraction at the Maison. But we sympathize, so we won't. Olive is another of our Home Ec stars, whose accomplishments in the way of sewing and cooking, smite us with envy; also her rendering of Shakespeare which she quotes by the yard. “Nut”

West Chesterfield, New Hampshire

Brattleboro High School; Home Economics Club (1, 2); English Club (3).

“Nut!” What a name to fasten on such an innocent young hopeful as you were two years ago! Such a combination of various talents and sundry acquired abilities should surely have evoked a more aesthetic title. But after all—what’s in a name?

With your sober (and shall I say dignified?) air one would never dream of the ingenuity, wit and cleverness residing in that small, fluffy head. Nor from your serious mien is one altogether prepared for those droll, humorous remarks that are continually surprising and delighting us.

“Nut” is a past mistress in the art of elocution, where she particularly shines in her renderings of “Uncle Josh,” and her pathetic interpretations of “Roll on, Silver Moon,” or parodies on friend Omar.

Yet her most enviable record is in Home Ec, especially her record for breaking needles. Mischievous and jolly, yet serious and conscientious when occasion demands, how could we survive without our “Nut?”

“She’s dear to the heart of woman,
The same to the heart of man,
The only way to describe her
Is—well—she’s just ‘Anne’.”

We have heard it said, although we won’t vouch for the fact, that “Anne” got her start at the Freshman Reception. Be that as it may, the fact remains, that once started she has been going ever since! “Anne” is nothing if not versatile—witness her folding of the weekly periodical with as much grace as she plays the chapel organ.

Although athletics are not her strong point, we really think she should go out for track, as we know of no one more successful in sprinting for and hopping trains. Apropos of the above we should advise “Anne” to have two straps on her suitcase. “Anne” is a combination of humor, seriousness and fun, yet always in demand when responsibility must be shouldered.

“How happy would I be with either
Were the other dear charmer away.”
Did you ever see a more cheery and jovial smile than “Jerry’s”? The cares of the world seem to sit lightly on her shoulders and she always has a merry hello for everyone.

“Jerry” is a “heavenly twin” too, for wherever you see “Jerry” you may be certain that Harry is somewhere in the vicinity. “Jerry” has many accomplishments, but her particular hobby is athletics—of every sort and description. Yea, we have often seen her flying by at breakneck speed on horseback.

Besides bearing an enviable athletic record “Jerry” has won for herself a host of friends by her cheerful and lovable disposition.

“Haste thee, nymph, and bring with thee Jest and youthful jollity.”

"Vi" is also another one of our tall damsels, who walks with grace and dignity (oh how we envied her at those posture tests!)

She is always diligent in her studies, but these, once accomplished, are speedily forgotten, and she becomes a jolly good companion. We wish we might see more of her, but of late years she has forsaken the lures of dormitory life for one of domesticity.

"Oh how thy worth with manners may I sing!"
History of the Class of 1925

In September, 1921, the Montreal Limited of the Rutty Railroad Company stopped at Middlebury, Vt.—"a small village cozily nestling in the Otter Valley. See hotel rates on next page"—long enough to allow a handsome youth and a beautiful girl in the late teens, each carrying a shiny new suitcase, to step off. No, dear reader, they were not Tom Swift and the Little Colonel, nor were they Dick Rover and Elsie Dinsmore. They were the first members of the illustrious Class of 1925 to tread the sacred soil of Midd. Later that day, the inhabitants of the town felt what appeared to be a slight earthquake. Not so. The revered ancestors of the college were turning over in their graves, and the shade of Gamaliel Painter—may he rest in peace—was heard to exclaim, "At last our dearest ambition has been realized. Middlebury has a class composed of the men and women we have always wanted."

The followers of those two were not less lacking in grace. We possessed that indefinable necessity to the college student known as "class."

Of course, last year it befitted our green caps and tams to hide our lights under a two-bushel basket. (One bushel wasn't quite big enough for us.) Now, however, we have attained the distinction of being Sophomores and may speak freely.

Early in our careers we started to set the pace. Four members of our class earned an "M" in football, three in baseball, and one in track. Others were almost as prominent in these and other branches of sport. We met '24 and they were ours in every event. Not only in sports did we shine, but the numerals of our class were well towards the front in debating, dramatic, and glee club notices. Our scholarship averages were proportionately high.

In this, the second year of our peerless class, we are equalling, if not surpassing, our own record.

We already have four letter men in football and one in basketball. Do not think that our men alone have contributed to the glory of our class. Through the untiring efforts of "the Hill," our Hop was declared "the best ever." To what class do the best looking, most fashionable and brilliant women belong? To '25, of course!

Want of space compels us to close this modest account of ourselves. May we continue to better that which we have already done.

According to the interlinear, people have been accustomed from time immemorial, if not at an earlier date, to consult the oracle before undertaking any important affair. We learned on good authority that she no longer existed, or we would have followed this precedent and sought advice of the Pythian on a subject of such worldwide interest as Freshmen history. Deprived of such inspiration we cannot indulge in wild flights of parabolical language, and for obvious mathematical reasons it is impossible to be figurative.

As we assembled in Chapel for the first time, some, happy and confident because their certificates had been accepted, others, worried and anxious over entrance examinations, we were surprised at the large size of our class and the very small number of Sophomores.

“Our friends,” the class of 1925, apparently had a very vivid recollection of their own Freshman days, for we had sojourned in our various domiciles but one night, when they made us acquainted with several ancient traditions of Middlebury.

We came, like our predecessors were, “green”—very green, but we learned—thanks to the combined forces of the Sophomore Rules Committee, Delta Tau, Sages and Waubankees—our place, and have kept it. We are here for a purpose and are determined to prove ourselves worthy sons and daughters of old Middlebury. We had a number of men on the football and basketball teams and have been thus far victorious over the Sophomores. However, our victories have not been on the athletic field alone, but in the classroom also; over such formidable opponents, as weak and strong declensions, irregular verbs, and the line values of the functions. We believe actions speak louder than words, or we, like Virgil, speak of limbs and the heroes who won for us from the Sophomores, hence in closing let us add these lines:

Phase us not in sportive numbers,  Upper classmen all remind us
Sané life is but a dream.  That we, too, shall be sublime
That we Freshmen are not in it,  With a mortgage on the greensward,
As appearances would seem.  When it comes the proper time.

Life is real, life is earnest,  Then let’s be up and doing,
‘Ere the college year is o’er;  On the watch for all Soph tricks;
With the frequent threats of hazing,  And then even Junior and Senior
And the Sophomore at the door.  Will acknowledge twenty-six.

Junior Prom
Class of 1923
FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1922

Many couples gathered at the “gym” on this evening to glide to the strains rendered by Myeroff’s Melody Boys. Yes, the music was good, all agreed—very novel and excellent. The room was attractively and uniquely trimmed with the class colors, red and white. The combination of peppy music, softened lights and pleasing decorations furnished the necessary atmosphere for a dance enjoyed by all. Dean and Mrs. Edgar J. Wiley, Dean Eleanor S. Ross, Professor and Mrs. Phelps N. Swett, Professor and Mrs. Arthur M. Brown, Professor and Mrs. J. Moreno-Lacalle acted as patrons and patronesses.

Junior Play
Class of 1923

“A Tailor-Made Man”—comedy in four acts, by Harry James Smith, was the production chosen by the committee. Friend “Y. K. W.” stated that this play was the best he had attended during the last sixty or seventy years, and everyone who witnessed it is of the same opinion, we’re sure. The entire cast worked together in such a manner that the interest of the spectators never left the scene of action. Professor Burrage and those who aided him should be heartily congratulated for the successful outcome. The play was presented Saturday evening.

The concert given by the Middlebury College Musical Clubs was held Thursday evening in Mead Memorial Chapel. The Glee Club was directed this year by Mr. Hollis Cooley, and he should be congratulated for the excellent work presented by the members.

Sophomore Hop

The Sophomore Hop, given by the Class of 1925, was held in McCullough Gymnasium, Thanksgiving Eve. The gymnasium was very artistically decorated with the class colors, black and white, and evergreen. Balloons were given out as favors by little Carmen and Tony LaCalle from a large parachute in the center of the floor. The music, furnished by Burroughs Orchestra from St. Johnsbury, was voted excellent by the seventy couples in attendance.

President and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Dean and Mrs. E. J. Wiley, Dr. and Mrs. V. C. Harrington, Professor and Mrs. D. L. Robinson, and Dean Eleanor S. Ross acted as patrons and patronesses.

The yearly issue of a handbook or "Freshman Bible" was one of the Middlebury activities which perished during the war period, no book being issued either in '19 or '20. With the revival of the local Y. M. C. A., one of the first things accomplished was to start activity in this line and through co-operation with the Y. W. C. A. and splendid moral and financial support from the students' organization it was possible to place in the hands of this year's entering class a very successful and comprehensive little volume.

FRATERNITIES

[Illustration of a child sitting with a cloth covering their face, and a skull hanging nearby]
The Interfraternity Council

The Interfraternity Council is an organization composed of twelve members, two being drawn from each fraternity, one a Senior and the other a Junior. The Council is the legislative body for the fraternities and its regulations are binding. It controls such matters as time and extent of rushing, number of possible pledges, etc.

Undergraduate Athletic Activities are controlled by an advisory board known as the Athletic Council. This council is composed of four members of the faculty, six upper-classmen who are not members of the Student Council and the managers of all the major sport teams, the latter being ex-officio members without vote. The officers are: President, vice-president, secretary, and resident graduate treasurer.

Playing a brand of football that has seldom been equalled by a Middlebury team, and fighting from the first whistle to the last—these are the outstanding features of the football season of 1922. The Varsity demonstrated these characteristic features throughout the entire season, and their ability to withstand shock after shock, as well as to hold their opponents to small scores, brought forth continued praise from sport writers in all parts of the country. More and more the name of Middlebury is coming to be recognized as a factor to be reckoned with in eastern intercollegiate football, simply because her record is a testimony to the fact that she enters teams which always play hard and square, and for sport's sake.

It is interesting to note one of the great sport writer's comments on the team, for his sentiments might well be the text of this review. "Middlebury," he said, "might not go down in history as having broken any records, but she will go down in the records as a team which always puts up a scrappy battle and plays from start to finish at top speed."

Although scoring nine first downs to Harvard's eight and displaying a powerful defense and a still more powerful offense, Middlebury lost her opening tussle with the Crimson eleven. The strength and offensive power of the Blue and White team was shown in the third quarter when the Harvard line was torn to pieces and pierced for a distance of more than 60 yards. The offensive died in the failure of an aerial attack to connect. Only the alertness of a few Harvard players at critical moments saved the day for them. The final tally was 20-0 in favor of the Cambridge team. This was the lowest score which Harvard has had in her initial game in a number of years. The fact that the Crimson has moved Middlebury up to the second game on her schedule is a material acknowledgment of the respect with which they hold their tussle with the Blue and White.

After jumping into an early lead and making a touchdown in the second period, Middlebury went down to defeat before the Williams College eleven who invaded Porter Field to stage the event. The Williamstown team staged a comeback during the last of the period and evened things up. In the third round, by a concerted number of over-Papke calling 'em. The response to the quarterback's summons sent the 250 Middlebury people who had traveled to Northfield home with happy hearts. It was the first victory of the season.

The following week the Black Panther took the Tufts College measure, and in the second period, Ashley carried the ball over for the only touchdown of the game. The game was the best played by the Middlebury team during the entire season, the full Varsity line being used until the final quarter.

Coach Cannell of Dartmouth forced the big Green eleven to the limit and their success was recorded in the 21-0 score, which they chalked up. Papke, chairman of the Blue's steering committee, was injured in the Williams game and his loss was keenly felt. Stan Ashley was the leading light of this game, and all of Coach Cannell's football brains and that of his men put together couldn't stop him, for he tore through their line and ran around their ends almost at will.

Although outweighed twenty-five pounds to a man, Middlebury held the powerful Nittany Lions to a 33-0 score at State College, Penn. Published reports of the contest in the metropolitan dailies record the defense as the pluckiest displayed this season by any team that had faced the Penn State eleven.

The trip over the mountain to Northfield put new life and vigor into the Black Panther, and when the whistle blew the Varsity started to run the Norwich cadets ragged over their own lot, and left the Vermont "West Point" playing "Victory" to the tune of 20-0. Coach Morey set the stage with Captain Drost, Klevenow and Ashley in the backfield, and...
“Buck” O'Neill’s Columbia Lions took vengeance on the Middlebury eleven on Armistice Day, turning in a 17-6 card. The week previous the New Yorkers had been defeated by an overwhelming score at Ithaca. The assignment was looked upon as an easy game by Middlebury, but it proved to be one of the hardest fought contests seen on South Field during the season.

Five thousand visitors from all parts of the State witnessed the powerful Keady machine, from the University of Vermont, sweep aside the Middlebury team and roll up a 32-0 tally in the final game of the season for the State Championship. The up-state team was held scoreless during the first period, but in the succeeding rounds things took on a far different aspect, and, although the Blue and White continued to offer resistance to the Burlington eleven, the twenty pounds extra carried by the visitors, proved a telling factor in determining the outcome. The work of Captain Drost in his last Varsity game was most admirable. To Stan Ashley, his running mate, is due a like honor, for the playing of both Ashley and Drost is par excellence in the annals of Middlebury football.

Baseball, Season 1922

David B. Morey, Coach
J. C. Saur, '22, Manager
J. W. Timberman, '23, Captain
C. C. Jakway, '23, Assistant Manager

Seven victories and three defeats is the record turned in by Captain Timberman's men for the Varsity baseball season of 1922. Five other practice games were played on the spring training trip, four of which were lost, Providence College proving to be the sole victim. These games are an annual feature of the practice season, and aid greatly in putting the men in trim for the harder battles during the regular season.

With only a few days' training on the home lot, Coach Morey's wards started for Boston and the first day witnessed their defeat 14-0. The next day Tufts College took a tumble out of the Middlebury team by a 2-0 victory. Harvard University was the first team scored against by the Blue and White nine, but the Cambridge sandlotters struck the unlucky bell at 13. Traveling to Providence, R. I., the slab machine and the crew of stick-swingers sent the pill all over the lot, Middlebury winning by the close score of 8-7. Back to Boston the next day, Northeastern Tech sent an extra runner over the plate, and the Vermonters lost 5-4.

The Dartmouth nine was the first to appear before the local fans, and a last inning rally gave them the game 4-3. Providence College, out for revenge of being trimmed by a single run margin on their own diamond, was defeated 3-1. The Northfield Cadets dropped another one at Porter Field 7-5, while Middlebury revenged her defeat at Boston by triumphing over Northeastern Tech 7-0. Traveling to Winooski, the Blue and White ran roughshod over the St. Michael's nine, rolling up the record score of 19-3. Captain Timberman's men made it five straight by defeating Boston University 9-2 before the local fans.
Playing before the Junior Week assembly, U. V. M. retained her supremacy in the diamond pastime by triumphing 10-0, while two days later a comeback was staged, the team winning 10-1 over St. Michael's.

The return Vermont game played at Burlington netted the up-state team a 6-1 victory. Dartmouth, in a last inning rally triumphed 6-3 over the Blue, while the season came to a dramatic close when a "home-run" bee struck the team and they whitewashed Norwich 7-0.

1923

April 18 William at Williamstown
May  5 R. P. I. at Middlebury
May  8 Vermont Intercollegiates at Norwich
May 19 New England Intercollegiates at Boston
By retaining the state championship of the cinder-path, and by defeating both the R. P. I. and the St. Lawrence University track teams, the Blue and White cinder-path artists entered another enviable chapter in their record. The results were by far the best scored by any of the athletic representatives of the College, and the work of Ex-Captain Robinson, '22, “Barney” Potratz, '22, and Whitten, '24, in running up 4 1/2 points at the New England Intercollegiates, makes the season’s achievements stand out in a grander and finer relief.

Coach Brown, to whom can be awarded the praise for producing this season’s track team, cannot be awarded full honor for the success secured, for the hard work and persistent efforts of the men aided in bringing this remarkable result. The future is bright for the development of track, as can be seen in the track schedule for 1923, which will make possible the appearance of Middlebury men at the New England and Vermont intercollegiate meets, as well as the two dual meets with Williams and R. P. I.

Potratz led the record-smashing contest by sending up the hammer throw record to 122 feet 1 1/2 inches, and by throwing the discus to a new record of 122 feet 6 1/2 inches. Ex-Capt. Robinson clipped 1/2 of a second off the former college record in the 220-yard hurdles, lowering the record to 26 1/2 seconds. Whitten hung up a new record for the pole vault, doing 10 feet, 10 inches. After winning first place in the R. P. I. meet in this event, an attempted jump for record was made which resulted in Whitten breaking his arm. Cook, '24, succeeded in tying the record for the 440-yard dash, which is 52 seconds flat.

Starting in Canton, N. Y., the Blue and White gathered 67 points to 59 secured by the St. Lawrence University team. For the sixth consecutive year, Middlebury won the Vermont Intercollegiates. The curtain came down on the season of 1922 at Troy, N. Y., where Middlebury triumphed over the R. P. I., her old rival for cinder-path honors, to the tune of 77-49.

A new branch in intercollegiate athletics which started at Middlebury during the season of 1921, attracted widespread interest in the Men's College, and over twenty-five tried out for places on this year's cross country squad.

Although winning but one victory during the entire season, the Blue and White harriers have demonstrated their ability in this field of sport, and its recognition as a minor sport by the College has aided materially in advancing its position. The team failed to make a very great impression at the Dartmouth race, but at Williamstown, a heated battle ensued for the various positions, Williams winning by a ten-point margin.

In the run over the triangle course, Middlebury led her up-state rivals, but a last-minute rally by the U. V. M. squad came very close to winning the meet for the Burlington harriers. Middlebury won this meet by the bare margin of a single point.

Six men were awarded minor-sport letters in this branch of athletics for having won places in the three meets.

The schedule for 1923 had not been announced at the time of publication of the KALEIDOSCOPE, but it is expected that it will excel the card for 1922, and probably add several more meets.

Basketball, Season 1922-1923

Carl Smith, Coach
A. A. Draper, '23, Manager
C. L. Leonard, '23, Captain
R. R. Crane, '24, Assistant Manager

Four victories and nineteen defeats summarize the 1922-1923 basketball season. This record is not one that should cause any regrets, however, for Coach Smith has aided in the development of a machine that should in another season be able to cast off the jinx, which has for several seasons past, hampered it from returning at least a majority of the contests as victories.

The Western trip, which carried the team as far West as Detroit, can simply be mentioned. It was, in fact, comparable to the Spring training trip taken annually by the Varsity baseball team. In every instance the quintet met a reverse, although several times by narrow margins.

Of the four victories chalked on the record sheet, three were won on the local court, while Northfield was the only out-of-town floor to bring victory into the Blue and White camp. The large squad which trained throughout the season, together with the increased coaching facilities, provided for the first time this year, cannot help but evolve a team that will give a good account of its playing during the season of 1923-1924.

Playing against great odds during the entire season, due to the inability to get the courts ready in time, the 1922 tennis team played against four other intercollegiate net artists. R. P. I. was the only victim of the Varsity, losing before the local tennis fans in a hard fought contest. The tennis aggregations from Union College, Springfield College and the University of Vermont, had the edge on the local team, winning both in singles and doubles.

The close of the season witnessed the departure from further participation in the net pastime of "Al" Gollnick, '22, and H. E. Lane, '22. Only Ashley, '23, Rich, '25, and Wilson, '24, remain from last year's squad.

The Outing Club
Season of 1923

By taking over the work of the Outing Club, the Athletic Council added another branch to the minor sports list of the College. Having won third place in the Dartmouth Carnival, during the season of 1922, the Middlebury team started practice under Coach Morey's direction, and won one point in this year's carnival at Hanover. At McGill the squad ran up a total of six points, the result of “Cy” Shelvey's work in capturing a first and third in the ski events.

Hockey, Season 1923

Middlebury's latest addition in the realm of minor sports is hockey. The three games played showed that Middlebury possessed ability in this field, and the material for development of a good sextet proved to be available. The initial game was dropped to the R. P. I. rink artists 3—0; the second was won by the St. Michael team 1—0; and the final game, before the local fans, was lost to St. Michael's 2—1.

The Team
Ashley, '23, Gallagher, '23, M. Ross, '23, D. Ross, '23, Drost, '23 (Manager), Fletcher, '24, McLaughlin, '26, Leary, '25, Twitchell, '26,

Middlebury's first Winter Carnival was held on Washington's Birthday, February 22, on the Lower Campus. It attracted widespread interest throughout the College. Coach David B. Morey was master of ceremonies. The “1923 Follies” ended the Carnival events.

The Undergraduate Association

The Undergraduate Association of Middlebury College is composed of all male students pursuing regular undergraduate studies. Members of the Association have an equal voice and vote, and members of the Faculty or of the Alumni have the right of voice, but not the right of vote. The officers consist of a Senior President, a Junior or Senior Vice-President, a Junior Treasurer, and a Sophomore Secretary.

Officers for 1922-1923

Eddy Kalin, '23 President
Cyril Shelvey, '23 Vice-President
Paris Fletcher, '24 Treasurer
Henry Happ, Jr., '25 Secretary
The Student Government Association

The Student Government Association has for its object the furthering of the spirit of unity among the students of the Women's College. It regulates the conduct of the students and gives each one a feeling of responsibility to her college.

All women are required to become members unless they desire to remain under faculty supervision.

Middlebury Press Club

The College “Broadcasting Station” is the Middlebury Press Club. Here daily reports are sent to papers throughout the State, and in rare instances to papers throughout the nation. The ease with which the Club secures the publication of its material is an evidence of the fact that they are meeting the requirements of the modern newspaper which seeks the presentation of unbiased facts which interest a number of people. It has not made the common error of many like organizations in presenting propaganda which papers of any standing whatsoever, ignore completely. The space allotted to the Club in State papers is constantly increasing. The chief characteristic of the Club is modesty, but its motto is service to Middlebury, and it is doing a worth-while work in an inconspicuous way.

Student Volunteer Group

The Student Volunteer Group is made up of those students who have for their life purpose, missionary service in foreign lands. The organization unites all the students in this country who have this common ideal. The chief aim of the individual group is the strengthening of this purpose through study of missionary problems and through inspiration of a common ideal.

Believing in the development of college life through the discussion group plan, the Wetherell Debating Club has since its organization on March 20, 1919, continued to stimulate interest in debating and public speaking at Middlebury. Under the auspices of the Club, open forums on important problems confronting the nation and the world are held, and discussions and trial debates aid in supplying the Varsity debating teams with the required material. The Club is composed of undergraduates and members of the faculty, who act as coaches, membership being open to all.

During two entire seasons Middlebury maintained an unbroken string of victories in debating, and the opening contest with Syracuse University, during the past season, seemed to point the way to a continuation of this record. A double reverse in the Spring contests, when the team was defeated by Hamilton College and the University of Vermont, proved that although a team may possess the strength of an Achilles, the vulnerable heel may at some time be pierced. While this was the case in the Spring debates, it may prove a stimulus to increased activity in this branch of intercollegiate contests.

The Syracuse debate was held in the Mead Memorial Chapel on November 24, 1922, and the judges returned a two to one decision in favor of the negative, upheld by Middlebury. The question debated was, Resolved: That the United States should join the League of Nations.

Debating the affirmative at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., on March 23, 1923, and the negative against the U. V. M. debating team in Mead Memorial Chapel on March 27, the Middlebury teams lost both contests by the decision of two to one in favor of their opponents. The question debated in each instance was, Resolved: That the United States Government should cancel the war debts owed to it by the Allied Powers.

The success which has attended Middlebury teams during the past few seasons is attracting widespread attention in debating circles throughout New England. It is barely possible that the Hamilton-Middlebury debate, which seems to have become an annual fixture, each team having one victory to its credit, will debate in neutral territory during the coming season.

Just as a man is known by the company he keeps, so a book is known by the individuality of the people whose work has been combined therein. Because of the kindly cooperation given the editors of THE 1924 KALEIDOSCOPE, we wish to express our appreciation, to the many who have contributed to its success, and in particular, to Professor Charles F. Abbott for his invaluable advice and kindly cooperation; to Miss Dorothy C. Cooper of the Howard-Wesson Company for her personal interest in the entire production of this KALEIDOSCOPE; to The Gove Studio; to The Kodak Studio; to the Misses Potts, '24, Dirks, '24, Wright, '23, and to the Messrs. Leary, '25, and Bulbulian, '25; to Mr. W. G. Gurley of the Harrigan Press; and lastly to the advertisers and friends whose generous assistance has made this, THE 1924 KALEIDOSCOPE, possible.
TO THE KALEIDOSCOPE BOARD

It was at a college banquet. The toastmaster asked for silence, and in a mournful tone, befitting such an occasion, asked for the contribution of one dollar from each to help defray the burial expenses of a lately deceased member of the KALEIDOSCOPE Board. Grouch, over in a far corner, using his flask to prove that nature abhors a vacuum, vociferously shouted, "There's five dollars, bury five of them!"—

BUT

"Let this thought comfort your soul,
In the midst of your worries and frets,
No football ever could score a goal,
If it weren't for the kicks that it gets!"

"AMONG THE ELITE"

An All Day Wait

Not long ago, "Binks" Benedict died and went to heaven. When she reached the gate, there was a long line of people waiting to get in. She had to wait so long that finally "Binks" asked St. Peter what was causing the delay, and he replied solemnly, "Frank Cady is at the gate, giving an account of all the idle words he has spoken."

Miss Knapp, (in a Household Decoration class): "We have finished studying the walls and ceiling, now we'll take up the floor."

FIRST NIGHT

Brownie's first night in College was a humdinger. He thought that he'd have to start things off properly, so he called the Hill and attempted to date a Senior girl. Neither knew the other well, otherwise the incident might never have happened. At any rate the conversation went something like this:

Comet: "How about the movies this evening?"
Girl: "Certainly not! I can't go with a baby!"
Comet: "Pardon me! I wasn't aware—"

WHEN HE GETS GOING—OH, MY!

Jack went calling one night, and after he had bid a fare-thee-well to the little lady, a very sad incident took place:

Her Father: "That young man is altogether too fresh. The next time he calls I'm going to sit on him."
She: "Oh Dad, leave that to me."

NATURALLY

Prof. Mills: "What are name of the bones in your hand, Mr. Coates?"
Harvey: "Dice."

Prof. Kline: "Late again, Mr. Parry."
D. Haydn: "You said you didn't like students in your classes to watch the clock."

DEFINITION OF LOVE

Love is a bad disease—
It is bound to strike and afflict almost everyone, no matter how immune they think themselves to be.
When it does come, it has terrible effects on the poor mortal stricken with its fatal symptoms.
But in Freshman days we heard D. Haydn say with a considerable amount of force: "Love is the imperceivable, incomprehensible, productivity, and let me tell you something, boys and girls, when it starts to tickle you, watch out."

Prof.: Well, spit it out, it’s arsenic!”

Prof. Kline: “Are there any questions on the Near Eastern Problem?”
Mr. Austin: “How do they expect to get the Greece out of Turkey?”
THE FOLLIES—FROSH INTELLIGENCE TESTS

Alcohol is kept tightly corked to prevent its becoming denatured.
Galli Curci invented radium.
Rome was founded by Castor and Pollux.
The Eustachian tubes are tunnels under the Alps, connecting France with Switzerland.
Shakespeare wrote the Faith, Hope and Charity verses.
Mr. Addison wrote the Spectator Papers with Steele.
The Pyramids are a range of mountains between France and Spain.

"Shepy" (in Ped. class): "Now you know that absolute freedom would be a deplorable state."

Prof. Kingsley (with the whimsical wrinkles showing around the nose): "Yes—I—er—imagine it is—I don't know!"
IN NEW YORK
"P. L.": "Why do they call this Broad-way?"
"Jac": "Use your eyes, man, look at 'em."

ONE ON P. N. S.
Prof. Swett (displaying a mineral): "What is the name of this rock, Timberman?"
Timmie: "I'll bite."
Prof. Swett: "Right."

REMEMBER WHERE YOU ARE, STAN!
Prof. Swett: "What is the name of the largest diamond, Ashley?"
Stan (the morning after the night before): "The Ace."

ULTIMATUM
A fair co-ed drove him out in the country four or five miles, and then stopped the car. "Shan't we go a little further?" he asked. "No," she responded, "I've gone far enough. Now it's up to you."

WATCH YOUR STEP
Georgie's Dad's a Minister. Said he to Georgie, the Third Great Man: "My son, women are awful geese."
Georgie: "Is that what you meant last night when you said you'd been on a wild goose chase?"

WHAT WE LEARN AT COLLEGE
Little Shorty: "Pass me the butter."
Mother (reproachfully): "If what, Oliver?"
Shorty: "If you can reach it."

TRUE ROOM-MATE LOVE
Freddie: "Yes, I have a broad acquaintance in the city."
Cherry: "I know it. I saw you with her last night."
Some Fit

Malcolm (just before the Alpha Sig dance): “Say, Charlie, may I borrow your dress suit for tonight? I have a hunch it would fit me.”

Charlie (putting the finishing touches on a Pi Phi seal): “Sorry, but I’m afraid that if you have a hunch, it wouldn’t.”

Dynamite

Cheer Leader (in the days of Mr. Biffer): “Now, boys, let’s give ’em a good cheer. A sky rocket with three Freshmen on the end of it”

YOUR STORE

The purpose of this store is to perform a useful function in this community. We like to think of the store as the representative of its customers in the markets of the world.

Expert in buying, your store sees to it that the goods reaching you are fairly priced, honestly made, correctly fashioned.

Only honorable leaders—leaders like Hart, Schaffner & Marx—enter the community through this store.
